"I should think ill of any man who did not leave his children a little better off materially than himself."—Theodore Roosevelt.

Children are expensive. It costs a good deal of money to bring them into the world. It costs more to bring them up—to feed, clothe and educate them. Nevertheless, there are very few parents who would not do anything in their power to promote the well-being of their offspring.

One of the parents' most important duties is to save for their children and teach them to save for themselves. It is important and at the same time possible to accumulate funds by easy stages, against the day when the youngsters require outlays for college education. Let us show you how this may be accomplished.

WOMEN CAN HELP WIN THE WAR BY RIGHT THINKING

—MISS YAW

"Red Cross work enters into everything that is done anywhere by California women now," said Ellen Beach Yaw, the famous singer, in her pretty cottage at the Colonial hotel. Her own knitting lay on a table close at hand, to be taken up at a moment's notice.

"California women have always been active clubwomen," she said. "Now they are keeping up their many clubs, but they've turned them all into work rooms for the soldiers. There's never a meeting where the women do not take their knitting, or sewing for the soldiers' and some one specially trained for speaking tells them of further work they can do to help win the war, and of what is going on at the battle front."

"I don't know whether the actual knitting they do helps so much, although I know it is useful work," continued Miss Yaw, thoughtfully. "It seems to me, though, that it is the thought that is knitted into the work that will help most. Right thinking will win this war, for it is a war now of right against wrong, and women can help more than they can possibly realize by their thinking. And when you are working for a cause you are bound to be thinking more or less of that cause. This is one reason why all this knitting and sewing—and I don't believe there's an American woman in the states who isn't trying to do something for the soldier or the sailor—is of such great help. No matter how slow or unskilled the fingers, it is the thought that goes with the work that will help so immeasurably."

At last the Red Cross rooms in Beretania street have a supply of the long desired grey knitting wool, and sweaters, wristlets and mufflers can be knitted as rapidly as the workers like, without the constant fear that the wool will give out before the garment is finished. This wool is on sale at the Red Cross depot at $2 a pound, which is far less than it would cost if bought elsewhere.

This wool is for sale only for Red Cross work. It must be paid for when taken out, and the finished work turned over to the Red Cross for distribution. A wool fund has been started, and those who are busy with other work that leaves them no time for knitting may contribute to the fund, which will be used to buy wool for knitters who can't afford to buy their own wool. Also, those who wish to purchase wool out of their own funds for knitters who cannot come to the depot, or are unable to buy when there, will have this opportunity.

The sale of wool will begin at the Red Cross depot, corner Miller and Beretania streets, at 10 o'clock Monday morning, and will be continued each morning of the week. It will also be sold in the throne room Friday afternoon.

While attendance at the throne room yesterday was good, Mrs. Henry F. Damon, acting head of the auxiliary, expresses the hope that the women of the city will come in larger numbers, as the need for surgical dressings is ever increasing quantities is imperative.

CONGRESSMEN SEE BUSY DAYS AS VISIT NEARS END

Honolulu is preparing to bid aloha to the members of the visiting congressional party. But another day remains for the distinguished visitors in which they may cast one more fond look over the land which they have been viewing for the past three weeks and which during that time has found a place in their hearts next to that occupied by their own constituencies. And that one last day will be spent in rest, with the exception of the Ad Club luncheon at the Young hotel which will be attended by the members in a body. It will be at the luncheon that the formal and official alohas will be exchanged between the residents of the islands and the noteworthy visitors although the informal and real good-bye will be waved to the party by Honoluluans from the dock when the steamer bearing the party draws away Wednesday morning on the long journey back to the mainland.

This morning the members of the party visited the Pearl Harbor Naval station and in the afternoon were entertained at a garden party at the home of R. Morol, consul-general for Japan to Hawaii.

This evening they will be present at the Lanika to witness and take part in the unveiling of the bust of the late Jack London and also to speak at the Pan-Pacific club dinner.

During the week-end the members of the congressional party have been exceedingly busy. On Saturday a trip around the island was made in automobiles and in the evening a grand patriotic rally open to the public was held in the Capitol building grounds.

It was an open-air meeting and the first opportunity for the general public to hear the congressmen's views on the war. Delegate Kalaniana'ole introduced the speakers to the gathering. Senator Thompson of Kansas was the first speaker. Opening with remarks of appreciation of the way in which the visiting party had been so cordially received here, he launched into his topic of war by striking the patriotic note. He declared that the United States would do more than any other nation when it came to writing the terms of peace, for it was to make peace secure that the United States entered the conflict.

Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, who followed, discussed the issues confronting the American people and expressed his admiration of the loyalty and patriotism which the congressional party found in Hawaii 5000 miles from the national capital. In his opinion congress should give Hawaii home rule, he said.

Representative Henry W. Temple of Pennsylvania said that the visit had been an instructive one for the party and would quicken their thoughts whenever the territorial problems came up before them in congress.

Representative John Arthur Elston of California gave a rousing speech brimming with patriotism. "If need be," he said, "we will have a gun on every foot of the American sector in France and if need be we will blast our way to the Rhine and across it. We are going right up to the hilt! We will never show the yellow feather."

Representative Benjamin F. Welty of Ohio was both serious and humorous in his discourse. Representative McLaughlin of Michigan who followed spoke briefly on the war. The meeting closed with three cheers, led by Secretary Raymond C. Brown of the chamber of commerce.

On Sunday morning the members attended church and were formally entertained at luncheon Sunday noon by Prince Kalaniana'ole at his home at Wai'aleale. After luncheon many motored out to Dr. C. B. Cooper's home. On Tuesday evening the final entertainment will be tendered the party and that by the Chinese United Society in the form of an elaborate Chinese dinner which will include every thing from bird's nest soup to humming bird tongue salad.

AD CLUB PLANS FUN FOR SOLONS

The Ad Club luncheon to be tendered tomorrow noon at the Young hotel to the visiting congressmen and congressmen promises to be not only interesting but instructive as well. Sparring no expense the Ad club has brought Professor Dinkelpiel direct from the mainland for the sole purpose of having him give a lesson on "How to End the War" to the senators and congressmen tomorrow. Now Professor Dinkelpiel, while he has not been around with the congressmen during their trips, knows every one of them like a book and will give a little side-show revealing the intimate characteristics of each member of the visiting party. It's said to be a sereamer and there will be room for only 500 at the luncheon so it will be advisable to be on hand early.

Harry Decker of the Ad club is looking after Professor Dinkelpiel and has assured the executive committee that the professor will be on hand at the hour in a merry mood. A treat is promised to every one present.

President W. R. Farrington issued a proclamation Saturday in which he called upon every member of the Ad club to bring his wife, family and friend to the luncheon.

Preparations are now going on to make the affair tomorrow live for ever in history and the fact that Harry Decker is one of the head villains behind the movement assures those who put in an appearance at the feast that the entertainment will be par excellence.

DAIRYMEN GET BATCH OF COWS

The first lot of a large consignment of milk cows billed for Honolulu arrived in port on a Matson freighter last week. The cows, of high grade stock, were purchased on the mainland by Charles Bellina, who consigned them to his ranch at Kulouou. Fifty-five cows made up the first shipment. The milk will be sold to the Dairymen's Association and will effectively forestall any lacteal famine.

Mr. Bellina, who went to the coast some time ago, visited a number of stock ranches and purchased a large number of high grade milk cows for his Kulouou ranch. He will arrive this week and has sent another bovine consignment.

As cows are subject to seasickness while en route, six stockmen were sent along with the first shipment to watch after and nurse them. It is not known how many more cows Mr. Bellina is sending to his ranch.
